

93 Days Around the World

The World March for Peace & Nonviolence

At a Glance

October 2, 2009 — January 2, 2010
theworldmarch.org

What: The World March for Peace and Nonviolence is a historic, three-month worldwide march involving more than one million participants. Its objective is to generate a global consciousness that universally condemns all forms of violence: physical, psychological, racial, sexual, economic and religious.

An international team of marchers are crossing the planet from New Zealand to Argentina raising awareness of the dangers of a renewed arms race, the military occupation of foreign territories and the heightened probability of nuclear conflict.

Simultaneously, an unprecedented social mobilization is taking place in more than 100 countries, where marches, festivals, exhibits, concerts, forums, conferences and social, cultural, educational and athletic events are happening calling for an end to wars, nuclear weapons and all forms of violence.

When: October 2, 2009 – the International Day of Nonviolence – to January 2, 2010

Where: The march started in Wellington, New Zealand and will end in Punta de Vacas, Argentina, in the heights of the Andes Mountains.

Continents: 6

Countries participating: 100+

Distance travelled: 99,419 miles (160,000 kilometers)

Estimated Number of Participants: 1 million +

Proposals of the World March:

- nuclear disarmament at a global level;
- immediate withdrawal of invading troops from occupied territories;
- the progressive and proportional reduction of conventional weapons;
- signing of non-aggression treaties between countries;
- renunciation by governments of the use of war as a means to resolve conflicts.
- To create a new global consciousness – as has already happened with environmental issues – that recognizes the urgent need to condemn of all forms of violence and bring about real Peace.

US March: Marches, events and special projects are taking place across the entire country between October 2 and January 2 at the local, state and regional levels.

Community groups and associations; elementary schools, high schools and universities; churches, mosques and temples; non-profit peace, immigration, youth, and social services organizations; arts organizations; businesses; and city governments: are all taking part in these initiatives to give a voice to the majority of world citizens who want peace and an end to violence as a means of social interaction.

Between November 30 and December 3, 2009, the international marchers are visiting four U.S. cities (beginning in New York City). The goal is to have events occurring in each of the 50 States and Puerto Rico on December 2 – a “National World March Day” – to show U.S. support for the World March.

Endorsers/Supporters: Jimmy Carter, Desmond Tutu, Michelle Bachelet, Rafael Corea, Cristina Kirchner, Evo Morales, Raila Odinga-PM Kenya, Queen Rania of Jordan, Noam Chomsky, Dennis Kucinich, Maxine Waters, Zubin Mehta, Yoko Ono, Viggo Mortensen, Martin Sheen, Penelope Cruz, Pedro Almodovar, Cate Blanchett, Jane Fonda, Abolition 2000 and Mayors for Peace, among others. The marchers were also be received by Pope Benedict and the 10th Summit of the Nobel Peace Laureates in Berlin. For an extensive list of supporters, go to www.theworldmarch.org.

Origins: The World March was officially launched at the Symposium of the World Center for Humanist Studies in Punta de Vacas, Argentina, on November 15, 2008. It was initiated by World Without Wars, an affiliated organization of the Humanist Movement that is internationally active in the fields of peace and disarmament.

Nicole Myers
Press Coordinator
World March USA
212-580-8029

Dennis Redmond
Coordinator
World March USA
(212) 313-9480
info@worldmarchusa.net

Humanist Movement

more info: www.worldmarchusa.net (US) • www.theworldmarch.org (International)